

1 What's in one kit (4 items + envelope)

ITEM	SPEC	PURPOSE
A5 QR card (Page 2)	A5 · 300 gsm matte · double-sided colour	The salesperson. Front = one idea + QR. Back = benefits + offer. Survives on a reception desk for weeks.
Doctor letter (Page 3)	A4 · 100 gsm · single side · doctor name filled by hand	Makes it personal mail, not marketing material. Hand-written name doubles the chance it reaches the doctor.
Pricing card (Page 4)	A5 · 170 gsm · single side	Answers "how much?" before they ask — transparent pricing builds trust with doctors.
Sample patient sticker (Page 4)	80 mm circle · vinyl sticker sheet · marked SAMPLE	Shows what their reception desk gets on day one — makes the product physical and imaginable.
Envelope	A5 rigid / bubble-lined, white	Hand-write: "Dr. [Name], [Clinic]". Batch code (K01...) small at bottom-right corner of the card, not the envelope.

₹ Cost per kit (approx.)

ITEM	₹
A5 card, 300 gsm (bulk 300+)	10–12
Letter + pricing card print	6–8
Sticker (sheet-cut)	5–6
Envelope	5–7
Courier (intra-city, DTDC/India Post)	30–40
Total per kit	≈ 56–73

✓ Assembly rules (non-negotiable)

RULE	WHY
Test-scan every printed batch on 2 phones before sealing	A dead QR = the whole kit wasted
One batch code per courier wave (K01, K02...)	Attribution — the code IS your analytics
Hand-write the doctor's name on letter + envelope	Personal mail gets opened; print gets binned
Log AWB numbers in the clinic sheet	Delivery confirmation triggers the WhatsApp heads-up

Generating the QR (do once per batch)

Target URL: <https://wa.me/91XXXXXXXXXX?text=Hi%20K01> (replace with your live WhatsApp Business number; increment K01 → K02... per batch). Use any QR generator that supports error correction level H (survives print scuffs), export SVG or 600+ dpi PNG, minimum print size 30 × 30 mm, always black on white with a quiet zone — never invert colours, never put the QR over a photo. Scan-test from 1 metre under shop lighting.

Why "Hi K01" works: the bot treats any message starting with "Hi" as a fresh start, and the full first message lands in your logs — so every batch, ad and partner gets its own code with zero extra tooling.

Print vendor note: order all four items from one local printer (Pothys/online like Printo work too) as a single job — 300 kits ≈ ₹2,500–3,500. Ask for matte, not gloss (gloss glare breaks QR scans under clinic tube lights). Get 10 extra of everything for partner packs and re-sends.

Item 1 — The A5 QR Card

MediBook

Your patients already have the app. It's WhatsApp.

MediBook turns your clinic's WhatsApp into a 24×7 appointment desk — bookings, reminders and confirmations, automatically.

CARD BACK — A5 LANDSCAPE (148 × 105 MM)

What your clinic gets from day one

The 9 pm bookings you currently miss — patients book while the clinic is closed

Automatic reminders the day before and hours before — fewer empty chairs from no-shows

A quieter front desk — booking calls move to WhatsApp; your receptionist stays with patients

A live dashboard — today's queue, walk-in entry, patient history, feedback scores

Setup is one WhatsApp message: send your doctor names & timings — your clinic is live the same day. Nothing to install, nobody visits your clinic.

Design intent — keep it this bare: one idea on the front, the QR is the only call to action, and the batch code sits quietly in the corner. Resist adding features, screenshots or a second QR — every added element lowers the scan rate of the only element that matters.

Item 2 — The Doctor Letter

A4, printed body — the highlighted blanks are filled in BY HAND before sealing

A4 • HAND-PERSONALISED

LETTER — A4 (PRINT BODY TEXT, HAND-WRITE THE HIGHLIGHTED PARTS)

Dear Dr. _____,

I'm Sandeep, from Bengaluru. I build software, and I built one thing after hearing the same complaint from dentists:
the front desk phone never stops, and the 9 pm patient who wanted to book never calls back the next morning.

MediBook lets your patients book appointments on WhatsApp — the app they already use all day. They pick the doctor, the day and the slot in about 30 seconds; your receptionist sees it instantly on a dashboard; reminders go out automatically so fewer patients forget to show up.

Rather than read about it, try it. Scan the card in this envelope and book a test appointment at our demo clinic — you'll experience exactly what _____'s patients would.

If it feels right: your first month is free, setup happens the same day over WhatsApp (you send doctor names and timings — that's the whole setup), and you can cancel anytime. I won't call you and nobody will visit your clinic — when you're ready, message me on the number below.

Warm regards,

Sandeep

P.S. — The clinic you'll book into ("Sunrise Dental") is a demo, so book, cancel, reschedule — break nothing, try everything. It takes 30 seconds and there is genuinely no follow-up call.

Why the letter promises "no call, no visit": it's true (this whole plan is remote), and it's disarming — doctors are pitched constantly, and removing the fear of a pushy follow-up is what gets the card scanned instead of binned. The two hand-written blanks (doctor name, clinic name) take ~20 seconds per kit and are the single highest-leverage effort in the entire kit.

The sticker is the referral engine. In the kit it's marked SAMPLE and shows the dentist what their reception desk gets. Once a clinic signs up, their real sticker/standee carries their clinic-coded QR for patients — plus the tiny "clinic owner?" line that recruits the next dentist who walks in. Every waiting room becomes your billboard.

Before printing anything: ① replace every +91 XXXXX XXXXX and getmedibook.in with your live number/domain · ② generate batch QRs (Page 1 spec) and place them in the dashed boxes · ③ print ONE proof kit, scan-test both QRs, read everything once aloud — then print 300.
